The main train station is just down the road.

 TEMPLE BAR

It all began in 2011, when Simon, a former BBC journalist from London, offered to teach English to a friend's friend. Cosetta, from Sicily, brought other friends along to his classes and the numbers grew so quickly that Simon soon needed more teachers and more classrooms.

With innovative teaching methods and a commitment to excellence in education, the school quickly grew to become one of the most respected language schools in Ireland.

Simon and his team of expert teachers and friendly support staff look forward to welcoming you.

YOUR SCHOOL

Be a very important part of a very small school. Everyone gets to know each other quickly and we'll remember your name.

Make friends with people from all over the world. Students from over 40 different countries study at the Central School of English.

At the Central School of English, you'll find bright, spacious, comfortable classrooms. When you're not in class, there are separate study spaces and a library of English language material for extra learning.

Need some fuel? There's a kitchen where you can prepare snacks. Tea and coffee are free and so are the cookies from our famous 'bottomless' cookie jar!

The teachers at the Central School of English are all native English speakers, qualified and accredited by the Irish Department of Education.

Each has a minimum of five years English-language teaching experience. Some, many more. They're also great fun!
